Leonie is Senior Associate in the Building, Construction and Engineering team at Tottle Partners. She has been practising in Western Australia since 2009 and is admitted to practice in the Western Australian Supreme Court and Commonwealth Courts. Prior to joining Tottle Partners Leonie was a solicitor at Minter Ellison and a legal and contracts specialist at FMG.

Leonie works with Lee Panotidis and with Richard Wilenski and broadly practices in the same areas as Lee and Richard, with a particular focus on front end work, including:

- tender reviews, advice and negotiation;
- bespoke contract preparation;
- project advisory, risk strategy and claims management advice;
- adjudication applications and responses under the Construction Contracts Act 2004 (WA), and the preparation of and response to subsequent judicial review applications;
- alternative dispute resolution including negotiation, mediation, expert determination and arbitration (which includes the briefing of experts); and
- court litigation.

Leonie's clients include private developers, universities, construction and mining contractors, specialty trade contractors, architects, engineers and offshore services providers based both in Australia and overseas

Her experience includes advice and representation on projects involving works and services on processing plants (including crushing), power stations, non-process infrastructure, airports, universities, hospitals, stadiums, public infrastructure, renewable energy (including wind and solar), telecommunications infrastructure (including the NBN), transports and logistics, defence works, offshore rigs and commercial, retail, residential and mixed used developments.

Leonie has experience reviewing and advising in relation to various types of project delivery models including ECI, EPC, EPCM, PPP, alliancing, joint venturing and subcontracting.

Leonie is a member of the Law Society of Western Australia and the Society of Construction Law Australia.
